MAYSVILLE WEATHER.

What We May Expect For The Next Twenty-four Hours.

THE LEDGER'S WEATHER SIGNALS.

White streamer—fair;
Blue—rain or snow;
Yellow—breeze—will warm grow.
If black—breeze—cold—will be.
Unless black—shown—no change we'll see.

The above forecasts are made for a period of thirty-six hours, ending at 5 o'clock to-morrow evening.

"It was the hour when from the boughs
The nightingale's high note is heard;
It was the hour when love's vows
Seem sweet in every whispered word;
The moon with soft and silvery light
O'er tender bosoms was leaning;
And on each flower the dew drops bright
Like diamonds with it blending,
When down the avenue there sped
With lightning sweep the bloomers—
Oh, 'twas a sight would turn your head
More than a dozen "subscribers."

Ashland is erecting a fine new school building.

Colonel W. W. Baldwin's fine stallion, whose case of lockjaw was noted in The Ledger, is dead.

The fight over the location of the Danville Postoffice has been settled. It will remain where it is.

THE PEDAGOGUES.

Second Day's Session of the Teachers' Institute.

The Institute was called to order by Superintendent Blatterman. Singing, led by Professor J. H. Rowland, Miss Hudson organist, after which a Scripture lesson was read by Superintendent Blatterman and prayer offered by Professor Willis.

Arithmetic was the first general topic for consideration, and Mr. Astbury took the first subdivision, viz., "How to Teach Notation and Numeration." He would have the pupil learn to write all the numbers to 100, then by an inductive process would teach the higher order. Reading numbers and writing the same should go together. No one should dare to teach notation and numeration without doing so objectively.

"How Far Shall the Oral Course Extend?" was discussed by Professor Willis. He would have the work through fractions and reduction of compound numbers taught orally. Do not confine yourself to the text-book. Make up your own problems suitable to the pupils under instruction.

"How to Teach Beginners Addition and Subtraction" was the next subject. Mr. Cook gave his method, followed by Miss Dorsey, who gave a very interesting talk on the objective method. Remarks by Misses Gould and Young, and Messrs. Thomas, Swift and Rowland.

"How to Teach Beginners Multiplication and Division" was taken up by Mr. Swift, who would use the objective method. He took issue with authors of arithmetic, and declared that there is no such thing as an abstract number. This brought on a vigorous discussion, participated in by Messrs. Willis, Chandler, Thomas and Rowland.

"How to Teach Fractions," Professor Willis, in a short speech, gave his method of presenting this subject to beginners, giving some excellent advice to teachers. Mr. Kane, Principal of the Lewisburg School, next discussed the subject of fractions. He would use an apperception method, and divide the subject into, and by means of this teaches, fourths, eighths, etc. Remarks by Mr. Thomas and Professor Willis.

"Compound Numbers" received the attention of Professor Willis. Method in work was urged upon the teachers. Let every step be given clearly and methodically. Miss Evans told how she made arithmetic interesting to her pupils. The way to make the work interesting to pupils is first to be interested yourself. Always know just what you are going to do, and see that the closest attention is given by the class.

Miss Thornton gave a very interesting talk on the subject of "Substitutions." She would have no conglomeration of figures. Indicating simply the fundamental processes, but would have a complete analysis of the problem by every member of the class.

W. H. Chandler gave his attention to "Tables, and How to Deal With Them." He would use the tables—put them on the blackboard and let the eye aid the mind in the acquisition of arithmetical knowledge. Give the pupils practical work in the various processes by giving them problems in purchases of articles of consumption, with which all are familiar. The teacher should be ingenious, devising new plans for presenting the various subjects to pupils, the aim being to make the work in the class completely.

Professor Willis gave one of his most interesting talks on "Reading." The word method the natural method. The word method must precede the written word, serving as an interpreter. Ideas before words in the natural way, but many teachers overlook that primary principle and teach words, words, nothing but words.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The first subject was "The Alphabet Method of Teaching Reading." Mr. Hill, to whom the subject was assigned, being absent, Professor Willis discussed the subject, condemning the method of learning the alphabet in the order in which they occur, before learning to read, but at some time it should be learned.

"The Word Method" was discussed in a most interesting manner by Miss Goddard, her free hand drawing on the blackboard and her unique development of the first lesson showed her to be a primary teacher of superior ability.

Remarks by Mrs. Kaye and Messrs. Willis and Swift.

"The Phonetic Method" received the attention of Professor Willis, and in the same talk he presented his view as to the manner in which the mind takes hold of words and the order in which the words should be taught. First, the object or idea; second, the sound-symbol or spoken word; third, the form-symbol or printed word; fourth, the elements of the spoken word; elementary sound; fifth, the elements of the written word; letters; sixth, syllables of the elementary sounds into the spoken word; seventh, synthesis of the letters into the written word. Judging from the close attention given the speaker it is the opinion of the writer that more practical good would result from the discussion if the Instructor should first give the Institute the benefit of his experience by bringing out the most improved methods of teaching the various subjects, thereby equipping the inexperienced teacher with materials gleaned from the fields of successful experience.

"Oral Lessons" was presented by Mr. W. B. Chandler in a short talk, giving his method of teaching language orally. Professor Willis followed with a model lesson on teaching language.

Mr. Kaye gave his method of teaching orthography, and Mr. H. P. Wilson illustrated his method of teaching etymology. Written preparation was advocated by Mr. Wilson and condemned by the Instructor.

A vote of the teachers, however, demonstrated that a majority of our teachers require written preparations of the pupils.

The following visitors were in attendance:

Misses Mary Gibson, Lulu Easton, Nannie Peckles, Maysville; Miss Nellie J. Hayes, Albany, N. Y.; Miss Mary D. Herbert, Rectortville; Miss Lizzie Murphy, Moransburg; Miss Addie Vandy, Maysville; Miss Clara E. Degman, Springfield; Miss Edith Dietrich, Aberdeen, O.; Capt. J. D. Rummans, Gordonsville, Ky.; James H. Hall, Jr., Bruce, Tenn.; Rev. T. W. Watts, Maysville; S. L. Hockinbury, Winchester; A. J. Calvert, Lewisburg; C. J. Duncan, Hillsboro, O.; S. T. Curtis, Mt. Olivet; W. E. Pite, Augusta.

On account annual convention Kentucky Sunday School Union at Russellville, Ky., August 29th and 30th, the L. and N. will sell round trip tickets August 28th and 29th, good returning September 1st, for $8.80.

THE FODDER BOYS.

The Maysville Boys Made Monkeys Out of Them.

The Germantown team tried conclusions with the locals yesterday afternoon at the park before a fairly good crowd and were easily defeated.

Our boys hammered the ball all over the lot and won by a score of 21 to 1. Had it not been for a wild throw in the sixth the visitors would have went home last night in disgrace.

The Germantown boys came here with the reputation of being hard hitters, but Wellner mowed them down, and he appeared to do it without much effort.

Taylor made his initial bow behind the bat for Maysville and did well, his throwing to bases being the feature of the game. Sparks, Concord's star player, was given a trial at second base by the home team, and while he did some good work with the stick, his playing otherwise was entirely too slow.

The Germantown boys are a gentlemanly lot of players, and no doubt play a good game when in their class.

The following is the score:

Innings.....1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Maysville.....3 2 3 4 0 1 2 3 2—21
Germantown.....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1—1

NOTES.

"The shoes have come." Sparks is a hard hitter, but his poor work in the field offsets his batting.

Monroe, Chard and Deisel will be here in time to take part in the game with Lexington Thursday.

Taylor caught Wellner in clever style, and it is the general verdict that he is the man we have been looking for.

Wadsworth at third and Bruner in left had an easy time of it yesterday. Neither had a ball knocked in their territory.

Chard will probably pitch for Maysville and Knorr for Lexington Thursday. The game promises to be an exciting one, and should be the banner one in the point of attendance.

The Lexington team is considered the best amateur professional team in the state, but many people here think that with the new acquisitions the Maysville team is equally as strong.

If you want to make a substantial gift to some relative or friend who has moved away from this section, send them The Maysville Republican. Price $1.50 per year.

There is much to study in the accompanying table. It could be extended indefinitely, but enough has been given to show our marvelous growth in thirty-three years. Our population has little more than doubled, yet our wealth has increased more than sixfold. Our foreign trade has about trebled and our farm values more than doubled. But it is in wages and savings that the greatest advance is shown—and where do we over see the fruits of Protection that we do not see increased wages and savings?

In the last generation, says the American Economist, the wages of our people have increased more than sevenfold and our savings more than twelvefold and during the same time we have paid off nearly $2,000,000,000 of National debt. In 1890 our exports amounted to $333,576,071. In 1902 to $1,020,278,148; and yet, enormous as is our foreign trade, it is small indeed compared with our domestic trade, which, last year, was estimated to be about $20,000,000,000.

Now we are asked to give up this grand home market in the hopes of increasing our foreign sales by a few millions. We are asked to draw out these savings and buy the products of other lands. We are asked to sacrifice these manufactures and farms to impoverish ourselves as we did just before the era of Protection began.

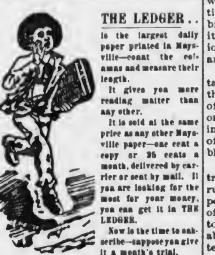

If the Wilson Bill or Senate Bill or any Cleveland Bill becomes and remains a law, we shall lose more in a decade than we have won in a generation. What a different set of figures the 1900 census would show after seven years of Free-trade. It cannot last more than seven years at the longest. We hope soon less if it must come at all.

The people will now begin to show what a bad bill the McKinley Law was by paying a higher price for sugar.

The St. Paul Globe earns a "read" to be a man who dares to learn a lesson for himself and family when a lot of bunnies insist that he shall loaf and become an object of charity.

"PARTY perilly and party dishonor" triumph, says a Washington correspondent, and the Gorman-Brice bill becomes a law without the signature of the Democratic President. This is the anti-reform of CLEVELAND's fight for Tariff reform, which began in 1887, when he first heard that there was a Tariff, and then the Mugwump lobby fell in sorrow. It is a sad end of a campaign which began with the clash of cymbals and the blare of trumpets. The Tariff act of October 1st, 1900, McKinley Bill—gives place to the act of August 27th, 1904, which took effect at midnight Monday night. No Tariff Bill was ever before given to the people amidst the thundering denunciations of the leader of the party responsible for it, and no party ever before went to the people asking their indorsement divided as the democracy does in the campaign of 1894.

President CLEVELAND has been crowned by his clinging admirers as a man of courage and force who would never shirk a responsibility, but he has now lost that distinction by reason of his cowardly course in permitting this Tariff Bill to go on the statute books without his approval. Even his best friends argued that he should have signed or vetoed it. Hundreds of heart-sick Democrats knelt before him begging that he sign it for the "party's sake," but Mr. CLEVELAND has preferred to be gnawed by his own selfish feelings and permitted his humiliation at this defeat to overcome whatever love he ever had for the party which has honored him so often and to which he has shown so much ingratitude. It is a sad situation indeed for the Democracy, and one that displays its divided condition and incompetency to a long-suffering country.

NEW TARIFF.

It Goes Into Effect Without a Hitch or Break.

Carlisle Doing All in His Power to Carry Out the Intent of Congress.

His Does Not Look for Defects of Function in the Tariff, the 49th year of the Bill, But Looks for the Good That Is in the Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The change from the McKinley tariff to the new tariff law, involving great reductions in rates of duty and numberless alterations in matters of detail, because of the well oiled wheels of government machinery, was accomplished Tuesday morning, as far as the treasury department is concerned, all over the United States without a hitch or break. All instructions necessary to carry the law into effect were sent out Monday, and collectors of customs and internal revenues worked Tuesday under the changed conditions, with new schedules and altered rates, with a smoothness and dispatch that shows how thoroughly the government machine is directed and kept in hand by the powers at Washington.

Many points, it is expected, will be found in the new tariff by collectors of customs, especially, that will require an appeal to the board of general appraisers and finally to the secretary of the treasury, but Mr. Carlisle, with the prudence and foresight that becomes almost second nature with one charged with heavy governmental responsibilities, will not "cross the bridge" until he reaches it. Collectors of customs will first pass upon such disputed points, and the importers, if dissatisfied with the decision, can, as provided by law, make an appeal to the board of general appraisers and finally to the secretary of the treasury.

Each light has been shed upon the line of decisions that Secretary Carlisle will follow in the few decisions or disputed points that he has already made, and they will serve as a guide to customs officers all over the United States. On the question of admitting free dutiable goods now in bond and placed on the free list by the law, Secretary Carlisle looked to the intent of congress solely, and although the new law was somewhat obscure at its meaning by a liberal construction of the new law he admitted such goods free without submitting the owners to the expense of exporting and reimporting this class of goods.

This gives a key to decisions affecting the disputed points in the new tariff, and shows that Secretary Carlisle intends to do all in his power to carry out the intent of congress. He will not look for defects of punctuation that might defeat the objects of the bill, but rather look for the good that is in it, and so construct its obscure provisions in the interest of the government and with fairness to importers.

According to the official figures obtained from the bureau of statistics of the treasury department, the amount of goods in customs bonded warehouses on July 31 last aggregated $31,794,446 in value. During this month the value of bonded goods has increased probably to $44,000,000.

All advances received Tuesday at the treasury are to the effect that a great many more than effect the decline in internal revenue, which from day to day will be at a minimum amount for some time to come.

From internal revenue, so far this fiscal year, the receipts have aggregated $31,000,000—almost $1,000,000 per day for each working day. For September, revenue from this source is estimated at only $8,000,000, derived almost exclusively from the tax on fermented liquors and tobacco.

The heavy increase in receipts this month from internal revenue has already exceeded the expenditures $8,000,000, and for the next few months customs receipts will probably exceed this amount, leaving the treasury in an easy position and enabling it to wipe out this year the deficit of $99,000,000 of last year.

At the treasury the benefits of the new tariff law are expected to make themselves daily apparent, since the net balance notwithstanding at $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 for a few months, it will enable the secretary of the treasury to build up the gold reserve, now aggregating $55,000,000, without weakening the net treasury balance.

SMALLPOX RIOT.
Mob Beats Milwaukee Police, Who Try to Remove a Patient.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 28.—The health officers are having more trouble in removing smallpox patients from their homes to the isolated hospital. Tuesday morning Chief Inspector Curtis started out for the South side for the purpose of removing August H. Winkle from 515 Sixteenth avenue to the hospital.

Unfortunately he arrived there about five minutes too early, at 9:30 a. m. It had been prearranged that Chief Jansen should have fifty policemen on the spot at 9:45 a. m. They arrived five minutes after the ambulance. Mr. Curtis was met by three hundred people, mostly women, armed with clubs. As soon as they saw the ambulance they made a savage attack. Stones were thrown, several of them wrecking the ambulance and one striking Mr. Curtis on the head. He drove away.

Five minutes later policemen arrived and charged the mob. They met with stubborn resistance. The women were finally overpowered, but not until a number of policemen had received blows from clubs and stones. Two arrests were made: Fred Rosenberg, a grocer, living at the corner of Seventh and Grand streets, and one, name, and a woman named Bertha Berg.

Meantime an injunction was obtained from Court Commissioner Ryan restraining Dr. Kemper from removing Winkle to the hospital, on the ground that he could be isolated at his own home. So no further attempt was made to remove him.

Dr. Kemper spent the entire forenoon with Chief Jansen, who sent out for more policemen. No attempt was made Tuesday evening to remove any except those who are willing to go to the hospital.

A SENSATION.

Members of Prominent Fremont Families Secretly Married by an Unwedded Minister.
FREMONT, O., Aug. 28.—A sensational story was made public here Tuesday which involves a prominent and highly connected young man of this city. The story, as learned from good authority, is to the effect that on August 16 Fred Albright, aged 35, and son of Rev. J. L. Albright, pastor of the M. E. church of this city, and Miss Lillian Oram, daughter of John Oram, of Cleveland, president of the Lakeside Co., were married secretly by Rev. C. R. Fillbrow, of Lacarne, at that place. The license was secured at Sandusky.

The affair was considered by young Albright and his bride, who was also Rev. J. L. Albright's daughter, as a joke, and after the ceremony returned to their homes. Everything was kept quiet until Papa Albright found the certificate in Freddie's pocket, and a discordant followed Monday.

The parents of the youthful jokers went to Sandusky to investigate the matter. It was found the minister who performed the ceremony had not been ordained, and that the marriage was according to law.

Barber Murder Near Parkersburg.
PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Up on arriving home, on Neal's Run, opposite here, at midnight, Charles Kateloff, a young man, who had been long suspected of being intimate with his wife, feigning sleep on the floor of the bedroom, the woman being absent, he attempted to wake him. Morgan jumped up, drew a hatchet and struck Kateloff five times, each time crushing his skull. He then threw the hatchet through the window and escaped to the city, where he was arrested. Although his victim is not yet dead, everything indicates that he will die. The police arrested Mrs. Kateloff, Walter Hammond and wife and two other women, who were at the house at the time, as accessories.
